

Federica Mirabelli (11/03/1985), better known as Ikka, was born in the province of Milan and from her childhood she has shown a vivid interest for different arts like drawing, music and photography, which she learned autodidactly: artistic passions against which she set the study/interests in the field of informatics.

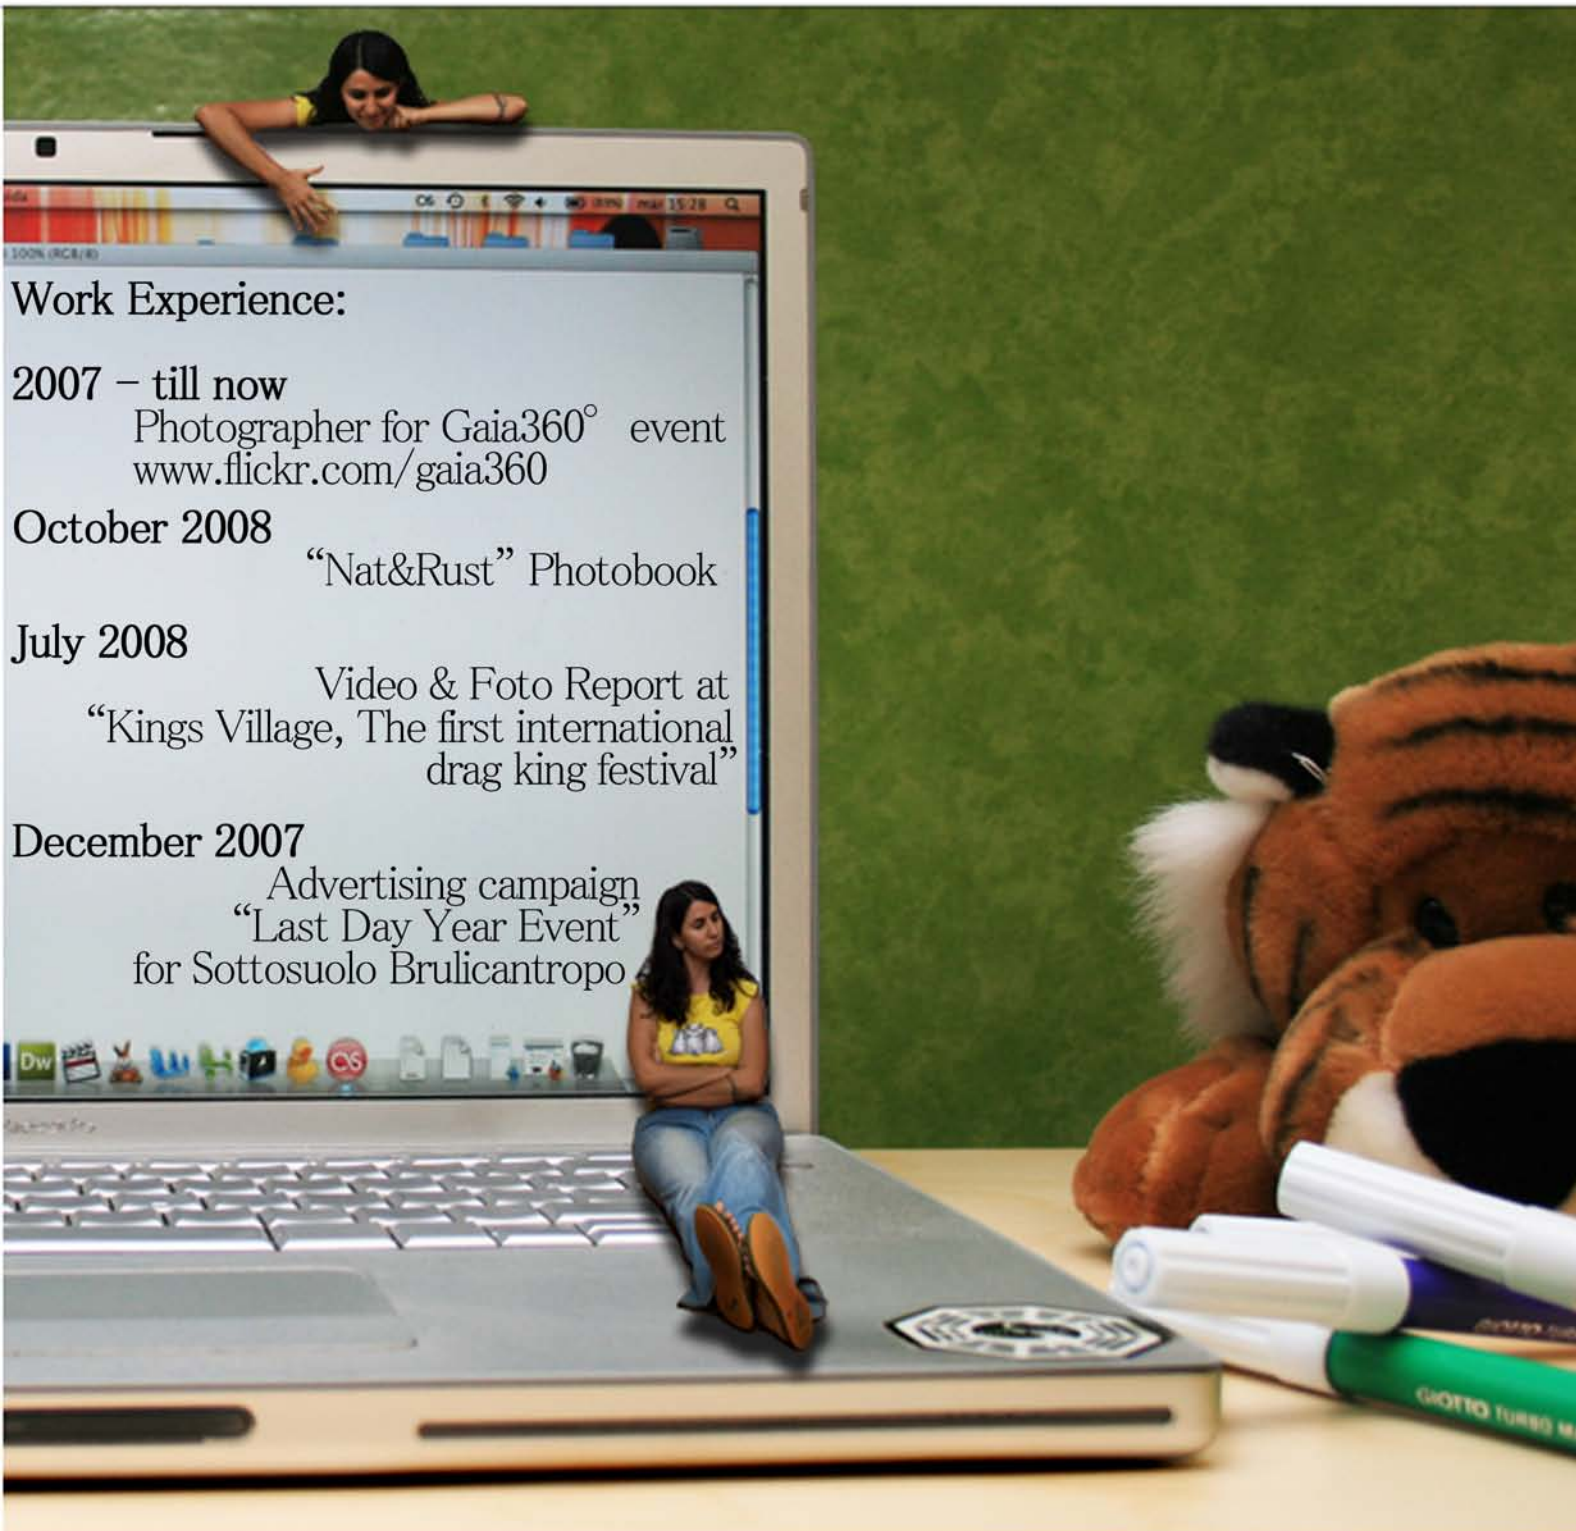

As a result, the passion for digital photography has become constantly stronger. So she started photographing with increasing frequency concerts, events and people. Today, her preferred subjects are colourful characters, people of the nocturnal "movida" and compositions of image processing made for the desire to try out and learn.
